SBC WMU Sessions Will Mark Bicentennial

NORFOLK (BP) — The national meeting of the Southern Baptist Woman's Missionary Union will investigate the missions implications of the nation's Bicentennial at a two-day gathering at Scope Convention Center here, June 13-14.

The meeting, which precedes the Southern Baptist Convention annual meeting, June 15-17 in the Scope Convention Center, will call participants to thanksgiving for their heritage and commitment to building a strong missions base in the American family, church and society. The meeting's theme is "Stand Up and Bless the Lord."

The WMU meeting will incorporate the first national conference for Baptist Young Women, which will meet, June 11-13, at the Virginia Beach Convention Center before merging with the WMU meeting.

Participants in the BYW meeting, which gets underway at 7:00 p.m., Friday, June 11, must pre-register with the WMU office in Birmingham. BYW registrants will be transported by bus to the Scope Convention Center in Norfolk for the WMU meeting, beginning Sunday, June 13.

WMU sessions will feature a battery of religious and national leaders, including U. S. Rep. John Buchanan (R-Ala.) and Mrs. Buchanan.

Two duplicate sessions, featuring a historical drama on the emergence of women's rights, will be staged by the WMU on Sunday. A 3 p.m. afternoon meeting will be held to accommodate Norfolk area Baptists in the 2,400-seat auditorium, and a 7 p.m. repeat of (Continued on page 3)

Kaleidoscope '76 Set For Baptist Young Women

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (BP) — The first national gathering of Baptist Young Women (BYW), which meets at the Virginia Beach Convention Center here, June 11-13, will offer a kaleidoscopic view of options for young women to be involved in missions.

The meeting, called Kaleidoscope '76, will actually continue through June 14, merging with the national annual meeting of Woman's Missionary Union (WMU), auxiliary to the Southern Baptist Convention (SBC), which meets June 13-14 in the Scope Convention Center, Norfolk. Byw's will be transported by bus to the WMU sessions.

Both meetings precede the annual sessions of the SBC, June 15-17, in the Scope Convention Center. WMU is sponsoring Kaleidoscope for Baptist Young Women, ages 18-29, to appeal to college students, young homemakers, young career women and those who combine these roles, according to Jane Hix, BYW consultant at the WMU national office, Birmingham.

Miss Hix, who suggested that pastors' wives in the 18-29 age bracket might attend Kaleidoscope as part of the travels to the SBC meeting, said BYW's should pre-register by sending a $5 fee to the WMU office in Birmingham. Families are invited to join the (Continued on page 2)

Bible Societies Publish New Chinese Version

NEW YORK, Feb. 27 — The American Bible Society has announced the publication by the United Bible Societies of a new translation of the New Testament in contemporary Mandarin Chinese. It has been named the Today's Chinese Version.

The new translation has been designed primarily for evangelism among non-Christian youth, ages 15-25. It avoids as much as possible using a technical and ecclesiastical vocabulary comprehensible only to Christians and the theologically educated. Instead, Today's Chinese Version tries to express accurately the meaning of the original Greek in everyday Mandarin Chinese, understandable to Chinese-speaking people throughout the world.

Emphasis has also been placed upon a fluent oral style, since more people will hear the translation read aloud than will read it for themselves. It is already being broadcast by radio to Chinese communities throughout Asia, including mainland China. The new translation can be quickly transcribed into the new simplified script used on the mainland, should opportunities for distribution there suddenly open up.

Today's Chinese Version is the first new Chinese translation published by the Bible Societies since 1919, when they released the Union Version, the standard Biblical text used in Chinese Protestant churches. Today's Chinese Version is not designed to replace the (Continued on page 3)

Southern Baptist Hospital Observes 50th Anniversary

NEW ORLEANS (BP) — Southern Baptist Hospital, the first hospital established by the Southern Baptist Convention, celebrated its 50th anniversary here, March 8, 1976.

Although the SBC released the hospital from its control in 1971, it "has continued to operate within the original Christian philosophy of its founders," a spokesman said.

In 1926, the main building, consisting of a basement and eight stories, had a capacity of 248 beds with 36 bassinets in the nursery. Land, buildings, equipment and furnishings represented an investment of about $1,250,000. This is shown in the upper photo.

Today, the teaching hospital employs 1,811 persons in a 670 bed facility valued at about $30,000,000. It serves more than 60,000 patients annually and has 400 physicians on its medical staff. The present facility is shown in the lower photo.

Rooms For Norfolk SBC Going "At Rapid Pace"

NORFOLK (BP) — The housing bureau for the Southern Baptist Convention (SBC) annual meeting here in June said room reservations "are being made at a rapid pace," according to Paul Mims, Norfolk pastor and member of the SBC local arrangements committee.

"Of the 6,373 rooms available," Mims said, "3,628 have already been booked," as of March 2, although housing bureau spokesman said they are continuing efforts to increase the total number of rooms.

"Those who have made reservations are advised to send payment of one night's lodging to the hotel from which they have received a confirmation," Mims said. "The reason for this is that this is a resort area and the rooms will be at a premium in the summer."

He said bus transportation "will be provided at a nominal cost from all of the hotels each hour to the Norfolk Scope Convention Center. The travel time from Virginia Beach to downtown Norfolk is approximately 30 minutes."

Besides hotels, Mims said 22 condominium apartments, with one to three rooms are available at a price of $35 to $60 per night, with a minimum of five nights.

He said several ocean front houses, with two to six bedrooms, are available and rent from $200 to $625 per week and that several campgrounds are available for (Continued on page 2)

Foreign Board Appoints 7; Allots $320,000 For Relief

RICHMOND (BP) — The Southern Baptist Foreign Mission Board appointed seven missionaries in its March meeting here and responded again to relief needs around the world with appropriations totaling $320,000.

Of the relief funds, $297,000 will go to Guatemala for reconstruction efforts following February's earthquake; $10,000 will be used in Christian social ministries for the people of Honduras; $10,000 for special projects in refugee work in Thailand; and $3,000 to meet various human needs in Hong Kong.

The board also heard a report from its executive secretary, Baker J. Cauthen, who commended Southern Baptists for their support of the work of their missionaries overseas.

Cauthen expressed appreciation for reports from Nashville of a 14.77 percent increase in receipts through the Southern Baptist Convention's national Cooperative Program unified budget from October through February over the same period last year.

Reminding those present that the books on the denomination's 1975 Lottie Moon Christmas Offering for foreign missions would remain open through April, Cauthen said he was encouraged by the $20,358,878 collected so far.

This amount is "well ahead" of the receipts collected at the same point last year, he said.

Cauthen also expressed gratitude for the continuing response of Baptists to relief of human suffering around the world. He cited Guatemala as an example. In two months, the board has appropriated $397,000 for that Central American nation.

Of the $397,000 March appropriation to Guatemala, $176,000 will help rebuild Baptist churches and pastors' homes; $100,000 will help 200 other Guatemalan families reconstruct their homes; $15,000 will rebuild a public health clinic; $5, (Continued on page 3)

Lolley Urges Growth In SBC Moving Living Stream

WAKE FOREST, N.C. (AP) — Identifying some of the "converging, complementing, conflicting, and competing currents" in the "living... living stream" of Southern Baptist Convention life, W. Randall Lolley challenged Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary to "go on building with them."

Lolley made the challenge during his presidential inaugural address on Founder's Day of the Seminary's 25th year. He was elected seven months earlier as the seminary's third president, succeeding Olin T. Binkley.

The 44-year-old Southeastern Seminary alumnus expressed thankfulness for the "continuing banner between this seminary and those who support it and to whom it sends its 'products' and for the continuing engagements within the processes of the theological educational enterprise itself."

Plunging into current analogy, Lolley said that Southeastern Seminary, one of six operated by the Southern Baptist Convention, "cannot with integrity simply enjoy the level of theological insight of the 'typical' Southern Baptist church."

It must, he said, "be working at the cutting edge of the best that is being thought and done in the area of faith and work. Yet, this school must maintain a connection to and a credibility with those who are never quite equal to what it is and where it is in its pursuit of the truth," he added.

"Thus the currents, and sometimes the cross-currents, are not only to be expected, they are to be welcomed," he declared. Noting that "voluntarism comes hard," Lolley warned that "at best denominationalism poses challenges to it" and "the larger and more aggressive the denominational bureaucracy, the greater the sphere of conflict."

"Thank God, we Southern Baptists will never all be exactly alike," he continued. "We do not have to be. Our richness lies in our diversity. The key to our togetherness is not likeness. It is 'Alderness' — our striving to become persons together for whom Jesus Christ is Lord."

"If we enjoy and rejoice in our diversity, we will live. If we do not, we will perish. A Baptist seminary is a graduate, professional school and we must address ourselves to these currents which flow within ourselves and our constituents."

Continuing to describe the currents which flow between the seminary and its supporters, Lolley called for a "creative tension" between the "faith-response" aspects of the Christian life and the society in which it exists.

It is, he said, a delicate balance, called by some "the interface between evangelism and social action, or the convergence of authentic word and credible deed... with the execution of the task as difficult as 'holding a moonbeam in your hand.'"

Fisher Completes Tenth Year As BMC President

March 8 was the tenth anniversary of Dr. E. Harold Fisher's inauguration as president of Blue Mountain College. Henry M. Whitfield of Tupelo, chairman of the Board of Trustees at the time, administered the oath of office ten years ago, March 8, 1966.

In 1967, the college's administration building was renovated and named the Lawrence T. Lowrey Building. In 1969 a new building, Cockcroft Dormitory, was dedicated. In 1970, another new building, the Paschal Student Center, was dedicated.

During these ten years Dr. Fisher has served in various positions of leadership, such as chairman of the Elementary Commission, Southern Association of Colleges and Schools; president of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools; president of the Association of Southern Baptist Colleges; and president of the Mississippi Foundation of Independent Colleges.

In Lowrey Memorial Church, he has served two terms as chairman of deacons, and in other key positions.

He and Mrs. Fisher have three children. Barbara is a Blue Mountain College sophomore, and Hal and Laura are high school students.

Mississippi Table Cloth

By W. Guy Henderson
Missionary, The Philippines

When we were growing up my papa found a big plastic map of Mississippi. Nothing would do but for him to use it for a table cloth even though Mama maintained it was hard enough to live there without having to eat on it. Through the years it became a pattern that molded much of our table decor and culinary endeavors.

Automatically we knew the vase of flowers would go down around Pelahatchie. Since there were ten children to crowd in on the benches I usually sat at Vicksburg. If company came I could be squeezed down as far as Natchez. However, this was much too close to the end of the table or along the Gulf Coast where papa sat. We laughingly told him he was sitting in the Gulf of Mexico but he declared as how the waters kept his feet cool and besides that he was fond of the scenery. Also, in this position he was able to keep an elbow on Picayune and another on Lucedale.

Mama always sat up in Tennessee, a position she preferred since her back would be toward the north. Papa reminded her that the war was over but Mama would only snort and continue to sit on Tennessee.

It helped too when the table was crowded. You could always say, "Here, set the bean in Hollandale" or "please reach me the pie over near Ripley." It taught the younger children how to set the table correctly. I can still hear the older sister telling the young ones, "Now put the plate at Meridian, the fork just south of Quitman and the spoon and knife up near Shuqualak."

Papa didn't believe in the first person singular so he would say, "Pascagoula needs the cornbread," or "Bay St. Louis is mighty dry." Mama wanted to change it come Thanksgiving but removing that map was akin to a revolution all over the southland. I was accused of being at Greenville instead of Vicksburg. Papa allowed as how he did not know if he were at Biloxi or New Orleans and that he would have cancelled Thanksgiving if he had known it would destroy the entire state. Moving that tablecloth map caused more confusion than the carpetbaggers' invasion. At supper that night I well remember how nice it was to see the linen folded away and in ceremonial quietness we spread the map. Vicksburg never looked so good.

Of course some cities messed things up something fierce. Mama always kept the coffee on the stove even though we thought it would be quaint to keep it on Hot Coffee. We compromised by keeping the pickles at Mt. Olive and the fried chicken at Duck Hill. Uncle Sipes would come to visit and beg to sit at Pilgrims Rest in Itawamba County.

Once I spilled a glass of milk near Raymond and it ran clear up to Tupelo and as far south as Tylertown. Papa declared it flooded twelve counties and said we should ask the government to declare it a disaster area. It was hard enough to lose the milk but to know I had brought disaster to so many people was frightening. I was afraid to go near Tupelo for weeks after that.

Through the years the map wore out but it didn't matter then. We had the places so well memorized that I knew every county and county seat. My cousin from Louisiana came to visit and thought we were nuts. "Put these hot biscuits at Wiggins" or "Pass the pie to Biloxi" left him utterly confused. It really impressed him when we told him the map story and later reports had him drawing a map of Louisiana on his mother's best linen tablecloth.

Try it some time. While this matter of teaching geography is not PTA approved the demographic digestibility is entirely satisfactory and is guaranteed to give you a new appreciation for fine linen.

those who will bring campers.

"Although Williamsburg, Va., is 45 miles away from Norfolk, some may want to stay in this historic city," Mims said. "The housing bureau has some 230 rooms there which can be held until April 1."

Persons staying in Virginia Beach who do not want to return to the Scope Convention Center for the evening session may go to the Virginia Beach Dome, which is close to the resort hotels."

Bible Societies Publish New Translation

widely revered Union Version in church worship, but rather to assist evangelism among non-Christians.

Today's Chinese Version is based upon the same principles of common-language translation employed in "Good News for Modern Man," (The New Testament in the Today's English Version) which the American Bible Society published in 1968. The English "Good News for Modern Man" has been phenomenally popular. Its total circulation passed the 50,000,000 mark in late 1975.

Work on Today's Chinese Version began in September 1971. The translating team has consisted of several Chinese scholars, whose work was reviewed by other scholars, stylists, and 70 church leaders from many different denominations.

First copies of the Today's Chinese New Testament came off the press in Hong Kong on Dec. 15, 1975. Chinese churches in Hong Kong, Singapore, and Taiwan celebrated an international Day of Thanksgiving for the new translation on Sunday, Feb. 8. Chinese churches in the United States will be celebrating a similar Day of Thanksgiving on either Sunday, March 7 or 14.

The cover of the Today's Chinese New Testament features 100 calligraphic variations of the Chinese character for the word "Blessings."

Translation work on the Old Testament has already begun. Publication of the complete Bible in the Today's Chinese Version is expected by the end of the decade.

Hobbs To Lead Doctrinal Study In Yazoo City

Dr. Herschel H. Hobbs, pastor emeritus of First Church, Oklahoma City, well-known BAPTIST HOUR speaker, and former SBC president, will be in Yazoo City March 21-24. He will be in the First Baptist Church, the Rev. James F. Yates, pastor.

Dr. Hobbs is coming to the Yazoo City Church to lead a discussion of "the Great Doctrines," a field in which he is a foremost authority. The congregation had an opportunity to suggest the doctrines they would like to hear expounded.

On March 21, Dr. Hobbs will meet with the youth during the Sunday School hour, 9:40 a.m. He will preach at the morning worship service 11 a.m., using one of the doctrines as his Scriptural basis.

Couples Complete Training For Marriage Enrichment

Fifty pastors or staff members couples have participated in marriage enrichment retreats over the last three years conducted by the Christian Action Commission, according to Dr. J. Clark Hensley, Executive Director. Many of these couples have been in more than one retreat and have participated in a workshop to help equip them to conduct such a retreat. The last such retreat was held on the Gulf Coast February 27, 28.

Upon request Dr. and Mrs. Hensley will continue to conduct retreats in the churches in Mississippi. However, marriage enrichment retreats only for pastors, staff members and their wives are now being assigned to the Church Administration Department of the Mississippi Baptist Convention Board. This shift in assignment comes as the result of a change of responsibilities in the Church Administration Department of the Baptist Sunday School Board, according to Rev. Leon Emery, Mississippi's consultant in Church Administration. "Dr. Hensley and others will be available to assist me in these pastor-staff retreats," Mr. Emery said.

Dr. Hensley reiterated that a marriage enrichment retreat is not a program nor a therapy session but rather an emphasis upon the positive aspects of a healthy marriage with an attempt to make good homes better. Couples who have participated in these retreats are capable of assisting in leadership of others and are listed for the benefit of pastors over the state who might need help in scheduling and conducting marriage enrichment retreats.

The Inspiration Of The Bible

in Baptist Messenger, Okla.

All Baptists believe in the inspiration of the Bible. However, not all Baptists define inspiration with the same terms or understand its meaning in the same way.

God in his infinite wisdom and mercy has made himself known to mankind. This we call revelation. Inspiration has to do with the method by which this revelation was communicated and preserved.

Basically the word inspiration means "in breathed" and refers to the process by which the Holy Spirit divinely guided messengers in delivering, recording and preserving the truth from God.

Neither revelation nor inspiration can be proved, or disproved by argument. Both must be accepted by faith. The twin facts that there is a God who has chosen to make himself known to mankind and that he directed the recording of this revelation into a book called the Bible, which is a trustworthy spiritual guide, cannot be proved by logical reasoning. They are articles of faith for all who believe them. But they are just as real facts as any other.

The Bible repeatedly declares the fact of its inspiration. "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness; that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works" (II Tim. 3:16-17). "For the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man: but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost" (I Peter 1:21). "And Moses wrote all the words of the Lord" (Ex. 24:4). Clearly men were under the influence of the Holy Spirit as they spoke and wrote. This is inspiration.

Most Baptists, therefore, affirm that the Bible is the Word of God. They are not satisfied with the statement made by some theologians that the Bible "contains the Word of God," meaning that the Bible contains inspired thoughts and the words were chosen entirely by the human writers without divine guidance. Most Baptists reject the modern idea advanced by some contemporary theologians that the Bible "becomes the Word of God" only as the Holy Spirit quickens its message in the mind of a reader. We believe the Bible is the Word of God! It is not merely a record of what God has said and done in the past but is itself a vital part of the redemptive process by which God is drawing men to himself and making his will known to them. "For the word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart" (Heb. 4:12).

Since truth is communicated through words, by its very nature inspiration must be verbal. (Unfortunately not all Baptists have accepted this self-evident fact). Any mistake in the choice of words would have misrepresented the meaning. For this reason, most Baptists believe in what is called the plenary (meaning "full") verbal inspiration of the Scriptures. This simply means that each word was written down in the original languages in the original manuscripts of the Bible exactly as God intended for it to be. Obviously this does not obviate the possibility of errors in textual transmission or in translation. The Bible claims such verbal inspiration for itself as follows: "Now we have received not the spirit of the world, but the spirit which is of God; that we might know the things that are freely given to us of God. Which things also we speak, not in the words which man's wisdom teacheth, but which the Holy Ghost teacheth, comparing spiritual things with spiritual" (I Cor. 3:12-13).

This, of course, does not mean that the writer was merely a mechanical stenographer. The idea is that the writer was under the controlling power of the Holy Spirit and wrote the words as God wanted them to be without losing one fraction of his individuality. God used each man with his background, culture, mental ability, literary methods and characteristic vocabulary. But the man did not write just as a man. He wrote under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit. The words were chosen by the writer and at the same time they were chosen by the Spirit. Because of this activity of the Spirit in which the personality of the human agent was never disregarded, the words of the writers became the words of God, and the book became the Word of God. The Bible is uniquely a divine-human book.

With this process of inspiration going on the writers were preserved from error and the Scriptures are, therefore, infallible. The so-called "dynamical theory of inspiration," which in contrast to the idea of verbal inspiration holds that the thought only is inspired and the form the thought took depended entirely on the writers, is particularly weak at this point. God "breathed" through the entire process. A complete view of inspiration sees that God directed the way in which these books were written, gathered and preserved through the centuries.

It is thrilling to realize that the same Holy Spirit who inspired the Bible wants to help the Christian understand it. Jesus said, "Howbeit when he, the Spirit of truth, is come, he will guide you into all truth..." (John 16:13).

MASTERS OF SPEECH by Edgar DeWitt Jones (Baker, paper, $3.95, 256 pp.). Outstanding studies of fifteen American orators, drawn from the nation's history, beginning with Patrick Henry and ending with Woodrow Wilson. One chapter is about Sergeant S. Prentiss of Mississippi.

THE CHURCH IN THIS CITY (Messiah Book Room, Detroit, 62 pp., $1.75). A brief appeal by an unidentified writer for Christian unity based on salvation and the Spirit's leadership rather than upon doctrine. The idea sounds good, but hardly can be defended by the scriptures since unity there is based upon the teachings of the Word.

COURAGE AND SUBMISSION by Stanley Collins (Gospel Light, paper, 94 pp.). This is a study of the two women, Ruth and Esther, both of whom in different periods of Hebrew history uniquely combined the characteristics of courage and submission.

MAKE LEARNING A JOY by Jim Larson (Gospel Light, paper, 75 pp., $1.45). The author draws from experiences as youth director, minister of education and pastor to offer guidelines for leading children in exciting Bible learning experiences. This book is for leaders and teachers of children, grades 1-6.

LANDMARKS AND TIMEPOSTS by Mrs. Truman Harsha (LeRoi, 125 pp.). The author is a 78 year old Christian woman who read the Bible through many times and taught Bible classes for over 40 years. Here she has collected scriptures on numerous subjects and has chapters dealing with a number of Bible themes. One has to read the book rather carefully to find the author's thesis that God's word does reveal the Landmarks and Timeposts which men need for life.

VOICES OF TWELVE HEBREW PROPHETS by G. Campbell Morgan (Baker, paper, $1.95, 127 pp.). Reprint of sermons by a pulpit master. The major thrust of the minor prophets is examined.

HANDBOOK FOR FINANCIAL FAITHFULNESS by Floyd Sharp and Al MacDonald (Zondervan, paper, $3.95). A Scriptural approach to financial planning. Ideas for planning your giving, saving, spending.

12 SERMONS FOR THE TROUBLED AND TRIED by Charles H. Spurgeon (Baker, reprint, paper, $1.95, 140 pp.). These sermons speak to the troubled heart, bringing the hope of God's Word to renew faith and confidence in the believer's life.

12 SERMONS ON FAITH by Charles H. Spurgeon (Baker, paper, reprint, $1.95, 148 pp.). The concept of faith is superbly treated by the eminent English Baptist preacher.

CONFIDENT CHILDREN AND HOW THEY GROW by Richard L. Strauss (Tyndale, 135 pp., $5.95). The author believes that the Scriptures provide a model for successful parenthood. This book leads parents to God and his pattern for raising children.

WHY ME? WHY MINE? by Paul A. Andrus (Abingdon, 112 pp., $2.95, paper). Dr. Andrus comes to grips with the fact of unmerited suffering, always pointing to the only One who is able to sustain us through all things.

AUTHENTIC CHRISTIANITY by Ray C. Stedman (Word Books, $4.95, 184 pp.). In this provocative book, Ray Stedman uses 2 Corinthians 2:14-6:13 as a model for discerning the pale imitation of Christianity from the real thing. He lists five marks of a real Christian life: an unquenchable optimism, unvarying success; unforgettable impact; unimpeachable integrity; and undeniable reality.

RESPOND VOLUME 4 edited by Barbara Middleton (Judson Press, 142 large pp., paper, $5.95). A resource book for use by senior highs in the church includes sections of study guidance on the Bible, Christian faith, the church, evangelism and a number of other subjects. Here are materials for many programs of worship and study by youth.

TO BE A PERSON OF INTEGRITY by James Ogden, Editor (Judson, 111 pp., $2.50). A collection of a series of discussions on Bible characters with studies of their life styles. The articles are by different writers. The Bible characters are Nicodemus, Job, Ruth, Nehemiah, Peter, Jonathan and Barnabas. The authors ably interpret these characters for modern readers.

IT'S ME, O LORD by Anne Springsteen (Concordia, paper, 47 pp., $3.95). LOVE TAKES A SOUNDING by Donna Hoffman (Concordia, 47 pp., $3.95). Two very attractive gift books of poetry. The first deals with prayer and faith and the other with the love of God. Both are very fine inspirational presentations.

THE FROG WHO NEVER BECAME A PRINCE by James "Frog" Sullivan, with foreword by Keith Miller (Vision House Publishers, $4.95, 173 pp.). Mr. Sullivan is program coordinator for Beachhead Conference Center in Port Aransas, Texas. This book tells two stories: One is about Sullivan's exciting ride through Hurricane Cells, trying to get home to his wife. The other is of the author's performance-obsessed Christian life which is relieved during that ride home. After years of trying to be someone else, that night Frog realized that God loves him the way he is: a frog who never became a prince!

Congratulations On New Hospital

Dear Brother Odle:

I enjoy getting the Baptist Record and I send special congratulations on Mississippi Baptists' new hospital. I have a warm place in my heart for Mississippi Baptists since I was in your state last February in revival with my good friend, Brother Jasper Neel, Jr., who is pastor at Belzoni, Mississippi.

Be assured of my continued prayer for the work Mississippi Baptists are doing in our Lord's name.

Says That Montana Missionary Needs Car For Work

Dear Mr. Odle:

I am writing to you in hopes that you can help one of the area missionaries who keeps helping others but asks nothing for himself. You probably know him well because he came from your state and you sponsor the work in Montana. His name is W. J. "Dub" Hughes and he is in great need of a car. How he does his work as an area missionary in borrowed vehicles I don't know but he told me, the other day he had put 4,000 miles already on a car he had borrowed from his pastor. Surely there is someone or some group who can provide a means of transportation for him to do his work for the Lord in the vast area of Montana in a more efficient way. I pray that this will be done.

Church In Germany Needs Youth And Music Minister

Dear Editor:

Our church is seeking a person to fill the position of Youth and Music Minister. We are located in a community of 106,000 Americans who are serving in the American Military in West Germany.

Our church is one of 41 Southern Baptist oriented churches in Europe. We have an English speaking church in almost every country served by the American military. We consider ourselves to be fraternally related to the SBC since all of our pastors are from SBC churches in America, and our Executive Secretary is a missionary under appointment to the Foreign Mission Board.

We have a resident membership of over 300. Our Sunday School enrollment is about 500 with an average attendance of 375. Our youth program involves at the present time almost 100 7-12th graders. We operate a full-time Montessori preschool and Kindergarten with an enrollment of 80 and a faculty of five. In the near future we will open a day care center for working mothers and expect to enroll about 80 children. We have a full church program. Our church is completely self-supporting with an annual budget of $93,000.00.

It is very difficult for us to find additional staff members since we are so far from the source. I will be in the United States from March 15 until June 10, 1976. I would like to interview possible candidates. Interested individuals should send a complete resume, including personal references, to 1790 Atlas Street, Memphis, Tennessee 38106, or I can be reached at telephone number 901-386-7972.

Baptists Given Liberty To Preach To Soldiers

RICHMOND, Va., 1975 (BP) — In response to an appeal from Virginia Baptists, the Virginia Convention sent an order to officers of troops fighting England for American independence to allow Baptist ministers to preach to the soldiers.

The order allowed Baptists and other "dissenting clergymen" to preach "from time to time as various operations of the military service may permit." The resolution was passed "for the ease of such scrupulous consciences as may not choose to attend divine service as celebrated by the chaplain" of the state church.

In their petition to the Virginia Convention the Baptists pointed out that many of their number already had enlisted and many more were likely to follow.

These Baptists wanted their ministers to preach and to minister to them during the campaigns, so the Convention was asked to allow Baptist ministers Elijah Craig, Lewis Craig, Jeremiah Walker, and John Williams "to preach to the troops at convenient times without molestation or buse."

As the Baptist pastors recommended for appointment to the troops "have a strong attachment to American liberty" as well as soundness in principles of religion and usefulness in the work of the ministry, the Convention was invited to examine them thoroughly to prove their qualifications.

The petition explained that Baptists had carefully considered "what part might be most prudent for Baptists" in the revolution. It was agreed that "in some cases it is lawful to go to war" and that military resistance against Great Britain was justified because of their "unjust invasion, tyrannical oppression, and repeated hostilities against America." The petition added that the question of enlistment by Baptists was decided individually, however.

Baptists had been falsely accused of disloyalty because they threatened to take their appeal for freedom of worship to the king. The measure was to be only a last resort, however, after Baptists had exhausted every hope of just treatment from the colonies.

Baptists threw their full weight into the fight against England, hopeful that out of the struggle for civil liberties would come freedom of religion.

New Testament Era Background Of Church-State Relationships

By Ronnie Prevost

Second in Series of Four

Before considering church-state relations in the New Testament era, it would be necessary to explore the background of some of the New Testament attitudes as they grew out of Greco-Roman civilization. The Greeks were very serious about their anthropomorphic religion. From the beginning they distinguished either very little or none at all between the religion and the state. Early Greek kings were also the chief priests. Even as the republican form of government emerged, the elected leaders determined the particular cult to be followed. Still, the union of religion and state saw a dominant state. Even in this atmosphere there was a degree of religious toleration. In Athens, although one was compelled by law to worship Zeus and Apollo, one was also permitted to worship his private gods. This was quite different from the religious liberty secured for the United States by the fathers of our constitutional republic.

Early Roman religion and state relations to a great extent paralleled that of early Greece. Gradually, a hierarchy of priests developed headed by a chief priest called "Pontifex Maximus." As the empire developed, Rome's state religion had become so corrupted by pagan deities that an extreme skepticism toward religion mushroomed. Such leaders as Cato, who said that he wondered how two augurs (priests or prophets) could meet without laughing, and Caesar himself, who even as Pontifex Maximus told the Senate that he did not believe in a future life, led in this skepticism. Out of this atmosphere grew the new Roman state religion — worship of the state itself and the state embodied in the emperor. Those not worshipping the state (such as the later Christians) were considered atheists.

During the time of the New Testament there were numerous types of religions: the mystery cults, the religion of the Hebrews, the state religion of Rome, a few worshippers of the Olympia gods, and some others. Church and state were inseparable. When one thought of Rome, one thought of emperor worship. When one thought of Palestine's civil government, one thought of the Mosaic Law and its resultant religion. Still, religion remained a political tool or point of leverage. A prime example of this is in the story of the lawyer asking Jesus to whom the Jews were to pay tribute, Caesar or God. The questioner did not really desire an answer in regard to religion, but wanted only to trap Jesus in a political snare. The answer that Jesus gave has often been used as a proof text in discussion and preaching on the church-state issue.

Both the church and state exist today as social institutions created for the benefit of man. The church was brought into being to satisfy the basic human need of reconciliation to the Creator. The state was brought into existence because man has the need to live within some form of order. In the past the two have been joined and separated. To separate the two does not mean that they are opposed, but that they fulfill different human functions in society.

In the final analysis, the relations of church and state have been marked throughout time with many unique experiments. Our view of history is often very narrow and we see American tradition as normative. The truth is that no single pattern has emerged in the history of the relations between the Christian churches and the governments with which they have been confronted. The relationships have showed signs of great diversity and to begin with there must be an open recognition of this diversity. The American tradition is one unique formation among others. It is from within this framework that Christians in the United States must formulate an ethic to deal with the issue. The question of the separation or proper degree of separation between church and state is one that affects every Christian and every taxpayer, especially in the area of educational considerations.

2100 Conversions In India Meetings

By Elven Fairchild

Flying out of JFK on January 6, my mind went back to the four times I had done this before. All the other tours of India I had made, one of the family had been with me. My wife was to have come this time. Problems of finances arose and I was the only one provided the means to go. Had the call of God not been so urgent and so clear, I would have simply stayed in the States and served here. People and churches like Claude Townsend of Townsend Foundation; Mt. Moriah Baptist Church, Brookhaven; Berea, Koeleusko; Salem Church, Tylertown and others in other states invested in this ministry and were praying for us; we had to go. Filled with the knowledge that God had called us and yet with thoughts of the changing attitude of India toward America and the changing political situation there, I went to God in prayer and committed the whole thing to Him and then took the first of many short naps that would consume the time of travel.

January 8: 5 a.m. Arrived at the airport in Bombay. My fears of reception in India were immediately laid aside. The friendliness and courtesy of those who helped me clear customs could well be followed in other places. I looked, searched, and waited in vain for nearly two hours for my contact man to meet me. Finally realizing that he was not there, I took a taxi into Bombay. I left Bombay the next morning by train for my first assignment.

As I travelled I pictured the days ahead according to my past tours. In one of these previous services, nearly a thousand had been saved. Little did I know the experiences ahead of me this time.

The high mountain passes where you look into the valleys below with their waterfalls, rivers and the checkerboard designs formed by the small plots of train and sugar cane were unmatched by anything I had seen. The beautiful coastline of Venguria with its would stand to preach to assemblies of from 12 to 1300 with the average assembly being slightly less than 250. Little did I know of the rich blessings that would be mine as I would see 2100 sign decision cards after they had asked Christ to come into their heart. Words would never be able to express the feelings that I would have as I saw the hand of God at work in these small assemblies. In the days ahead we would present Christ through the illustrated message (messages illustrated with magic tricks) and our talking doll, Andy (ventriloquism) in government hospitals; Hindu, Moslem and Christian schools; Christian hospitals; colleges; village churches and homes.

In Miraj, the first night at a girls' school, 35 girls at the altar to receive Christ was a most unforgettable experience.

Another great experience here was to work with a retired missionary who had remained in Miraj to do volunteer work. Her husband had many years ago begun the Christian witness in this area. He died several years ago but the people still remember him with love. As we travelled, she would throw tracts out. They were eagerly scrambled for. She literally seeded the roadside with the word of God.

In the village of Khodil, I saw the potter forming with the wheel the clay pot he had pictured in his mind. I was reminded that I was the clay in the Master's hand. We had lunch in this village. The house was clay with tile roof and dirt floors. The only light was from doors or windows or torch. The exhaust for smoke from cooking was under the roof where it connected to the walls. No furnishings in the room, only mats on the floor. The facilities were of the crudest and very poor, but you did not notice this, for the hospitality was of the greatest and the spirit was "a little bit of heaven" in a clay hut.

The 18th of January, we moved were said. One was in college, one in high school, and one in elementary school. In these same meetings, a truck driver, his wife and his children, all from non-Christian background, were saved. There were large numbers of the professional fields, doctors, lawyers, teachers and other present as God's Holy Spirit worked and brought many of them to the Lord. Many in their 40's, 50's and 60's.

Kolhapur was a hub of operations as we went each day to two or more villages. The village of Kagel was about a 30 minute drive. Another village on the same day named Napani was visited in the mid-afternoon. In the Kolhapur area all the services had a total attendance of about 4800 and the number who signed decision cards accepting Christ totaled 486. With 89 present at Kagel, there were 79 professions of faith!

The afternoon of January 19th we moved our center of operations to the mission compound at Sangli. Less than thirty minutes after arriving there I was asked to preach to the lepers who were gathered for their weekly ration of grain provided by the mission. There were 52 of them assembled on the porch of the missionaries' house. We illustrated the message and used Andy for a few minutes and gave the invitation. There were 15 that asked Jesus to come into their hearts that afternoon. A week later they sat in the hot sun for all of two hours and waited for me to arrive that they might put a garland of flowers around my neck and express thanks to me for sharing Jesus with them. This had to be the most heart-warming experience of the entire trip.

The services in the two churches that night were again demonstrations of the mighty power of God. Attendance was 400; a total of 160 accepted Christ. One of these services was in a small church and the other on a street corner. The one on the street corner met about 9 p.m. and the light was supplied by a drop cord run from one of the buildings which had electricity.

This series of services in Sangli was the most powerful of all the services we were in. In the 20 services, we preached to a total attendance of slightly more than 5,000 and 751 people were saved. In more than 1/2 of the services we were not able to give an open invitation. We could not help but wonder what God would have permitted to be done had we been able to stay in this place for 5 to 8 weeks.

The last series of services was in the city of Poona. This was entirely different from the other services. This is a city of 1 1/2 million people with many colleges, hospitals and seminaries along with some of the largest and oldest churches in this part of India. The reception that was held for us included college presidents,

Daniels To Preach In Meridian Crusade

The Frank Cochran Convention Center, 3000 seat convention hall in Highland Park, Meridian, will be the scene of the Friday and Saturday night services (March 26 and 27) of the Greater Meridian Revival Crusade, which is being sponsored by Calvary Baptist Church of that city. The meeting is scheduled March 21-28, and all other services will be in Calvary Church. Dr. E. J. Daniels is the evangelist, and W. Otis Seal the pastor. Some outstanding Christian personalities are featured in convention hall services of the meeting.

seminary presidents and faculty, civic leaders along with many teachers, pastors and business men. Here I knew would be the real test of whether this business of the illustrated message would be accepted in this city of culture and education. The Lord led me to do the same tricks I had done in the villages, changing only the message to fit the city needs. I did and the response was almost unbelievable. Invitations came in from the colleges and seminaries as well as the schools and churches. There is a ready opening there for us to return in the future and lecture in the seminaries and the colleges on visual evangelism and education.

I was surprised and pleased at the ready response to the message in illustration. There were more than 200 at this reception and not a negative sound. Many of these leaders received their educations at the elite colleges of the eastern U.S.A.

In the city of Poona we preached 22 times to around 7,000 people and the response was such that 780 decisions were made for Jesus Christ. It is our prayer that God will provide the finances and means for us to return in late 1976 or early 1977 while the doors are still open. I know that as God wants us to return He will supply the way even as He has in the past.

(NOTE: The series of meetings was arranged by Dr. P. N. Kurlen of All India Prayer Fellowship, New Delhi, and financed by the gifts of churches and friends of the Fairchilds. The services were conducted by Elven Fairchild, Mosselle, Miss., of Fairchild Evangelistic Association.)

A gift so precious as a friend
A friend who always understands

Whose loyalty will stand the test
When skies are bright or overcast
Who sees the faults that most blame
But keeps on loving just the same
Who does far more than words could do
To make us good, to make us true

But only God can give a friend.

A Woman's World Reads For
Beyond the Ironing Board

Wide Fender

There are many everyday things that make life good — the fragrance of a soap, the slam of a certain car door, the squeak of a kitchen door; hearing a song from long ago, finding a picture lost in the rubble, smelling coffee on the stove, looking out a favorite window, sewing the last button on a dress, stitching up a basketful of rips, tears, and snags.

Touching a sticky icing boiler and remembering kisses from sticky little lips umpteen years ago, then remembering that only week before last our twenty-year-old and our seventeen-year-old scraped an icing boiler, and remembering the times and places where I scraped the icing boiler. Which brings me rather quickly to my point.

Scraping boilers is almost as symbolic of the life cycle as the flowers of spring. My mother scraped them. I scraped them. Our children scraped them. Their children will scrape them. That is, unless technology does us completely in. Our boys never have, in my busier moments the few times I've gone to confectioners sugar icing, asked to scrape that boiler, and not once have they asked me to leave some icing in the can I opened to spread in a hurry.

I always have the feeling it really isn't the icing or the scraping they enjoy the most. I think it was the smelling of the cooking, and hearing the sounds of Mother in the kitchen doing something to make that time of their lives better — one of the good times of their lives — that they enjoy. It is sorta' like icing on their lives.

Sunday School Lesson: International

Ready For The Lord's Return

By Wm. J. Falls

Matthew 24

Does the title of this lesson remind you of some signs you have seen along the highway? If somebody in the car treated the message lightly, you may have fitted into that mood. Or you may have thought: "We all need to be reminded that our times are in God's hands and that someday he will bring the whole thing to an end." That is a statement of faith and not the cry of a gloomy pessimist. It shows the kind of confidence that can give serenity in life. While some people may be warped by an obsession with the coming judgment, others can believe in it just as deeply while trying to live the Christian life in the here and now. We need to hear again what Jesus said about last things.

The Lesson Explained
While Doing The Usual Things
(vv. 35-41)
Verse 35 is the theme verse of this whole passage. From the first of the chapter Jesus had been talking about last things: destruction of the Temple, catastrophes, claims of false prophets, widespread suffering, and then the day itself. But no one could know, Jesus said, when all that would happen. Although the King James Version does not include the phrase, most modern translations have the idea that not even the Son knew when that day would come. This verse ought to silence those people who keep on predicting the year of his coming.

To emphasize its unexpectedness, Jesus compared the situation to come with that in Noah's day. Everyone but Noah and his family was busy with the usual things unaware that judgment would come when the rains began. Some day in the future the people of the world will be doing the usual things, and then suddenly the Son of man will come. Two men — perhaps brothers — will be working in a field, or two women will be only inches apart as they grind grain in a stone mill; when the Lord comes, one will be taken and the other left. Both the coming and the judgment will be abrupt.

Prepare For The Unexpected

Verse 42 echoes verse 35 as to human ignorance of the "hour your Lord doth come." But this time Jesus preceded it with a command that his disciples be alert and prepared for the unexpected. To illustrate his point, he pictured a householder whose home had been burglarized, and Jesus said if the man had known when the burglar would come, he would have been ready for him. Since the householder cannot know the burglar's plans, he must be watchful all the time. That was the point Jesus was making about the day of judgment and salvation.

The Way To Be Ready

In these verses Jesus moves quickly into another parable. Verse 45 is better understood if the question mark is placed after "servant." Then the second half can begin (as in the TEV): "He is the one whom his master has placed in charge." This servant is evidently the foreman or manager, and the "household" refers to other workers in the home or on the estate. The manager was responsible not only for directing their work but also for having them fed at proper times. When the owner returns unexpectedly and finds the manager doing his assigned tasks, he will reward him with larger responsibilities. That is the way to be ready.

On the other hand, if the manager should say as the owner's absence lengthens, "He's not coming back or it will be a long time yet," the owner will surprise him. Of course, Jesus was talking here to and about his followers. He was urging them to be ready at all times by doing what the Master expected.

Plan Bicentennial Celebration

General Chairman of the Bicentennial committee of Sunflower County Association, Granville Watson of Moorhead, has revealed to a committee of members from the Baptist churches the plans for the Bicentennial Celebration set for April 11.

Thirty committee members met in Moorhead at the new Mississippi Delta Coliseum, site for the Celebration, to make plans for the program. Bobby Kirk of Roundaway Church presented the financial plans. Also he discussed the handling of tickets. Dan Morton, Chairman of the Music Committee, presented Harold Wilcox of First Church, Indianola who will conduct a youth musical as part of the celebration. The musical, "FREEDOM" is being rehearsed each Sunday by over sixty youth.

Cornell Daughtry, program chairman, presented to the group the planned activities of the day. Ringing of the "Liberty Bell" will begin each feature. The replica of the Liberty Bell given to the State of Mississippi will be used. Beginning the festivities will be a Patriotic-Christian worship service in the afternoon. A gigantic picnic is planned for the break between afternoon and evening programs.

The evening activities will begin with the musical "FREEDOM." Next, Robert E. Wall of Mississippi College will present his patriotic message in sight and sound titled, "America, O America the Beautiful."

According to Daughtry, the special feature of the occasion will be a Patriotic - Sacred Concert by Tom Netherton of the Lawrence Welk Show.

Sunday School Lesson: Life and Work

Meeting Christ In The Needs Of Persons

By Bill Duncan

Matthew 25:31-46

The "Parable of the Last Judgment" is one of the most vivid parables of which Jesus ever spoke. The lesson is crystal clear. God will judge us in accordance with our reaction to human need. "God's judgment does not depend on the knowledge we have amassed, or the fame that we have acquired, or the fortune that we have gained; but on the help that we have given."

When the Lord comes again there will be a time and a place that divides this life from the next. There we will meet God and he will put his judgment upon us. Most people refuse to consider that there is going to be a judgment. Most persons will break the traffic laws if they do not see a policeman. If they are sure that they are going to be seen or be caught, most persons obey the law. If every person was sure, perfectly sure, that every time he broke the law he would be caught and tried for it in a court (which was stern) most of the law breaking would cease.

Every day experiences are very revealing. A man was visiting an art gallery. As he looked at the work of the great masters, he said to the attendant, "I don't think the pictures are very good." The attendant replied, "Excuse me sir, the pictures are not on trial." The man was revealing his ability or his true self by his actions.

When one begins to have a faith relationship with God, it begins to show up in the way he lives. The standard by which all nations are to be judged in the parable is an examination that all could understand and would be followed by reward and punishment. It would be a mistake to assume that judgment was based upon benevolent acts toward suffering Christians and nothing else was considered. Stress is laid here on the fruits of good works rather than on the root. A personal relationship to Jesus Christ is manifested in actions toward one's fellowman. Good works will spring out of faith. So at the judgment the Lord will know how one relates to Him by the acts of mercy he has or has not done.

"Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the Kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world: 'For I was an hungred, and ye gave me meat; I was thirsty and ye gave me drink, I was a stranger and ye took me in: Naked and ye clothed me: I was sick, and ye visited me: I was in prison, and ye came unto me' (Matthew 25:35-36). "And the King shall answer and say unto them, verily I say unto you, in as much as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me" (Matthew 25:40).

There never was a parable which so opened the way to glory to the simplest people. The things Jesus picked out giving a thirsty man a drink are things which anyone can do. It is a case of giving simple help to people we meet every day.

The way of life of a Christian is uncalculating. Those who helped others did not think they were helping Christ or piling up eternal merits. They helped people because they could not stop themselves from helping. Whereas on the other hand, it seems that some who failed to help would have helped if they had known that they would have been praised for it. That is not the right motive. The help which wins the approval of God is the help which is given for nothing but the sake of helping. The acts that Jesus approves are spontaneous, acts, normal response to another human being in need.

The parable confronts us with the wonderful truth that all such help, which is given, is given to Him, and all such help which is withheld is withheld from Him. How do you delight a parent's heart? The best way is to do something that will help his child. In ministering to the needy, one ministers to Christ.

If one has to ask who is in need, he shows himself not to belong to the one whose heart is indiscriminate, who offers his gifts to good and bad alike. The ones who are punished are judged by the same standard as those who are blessed. The ones who are being punished have not committed gross sinful acts, but their guilt is in what they failed to do and be. They were unaware that they were passing up the Lord.

life. No one can read the second coming of Jesus Christ without knowing that life is going to be judged. His coming will produce great joy for those who will inherit eternal life. For those who have not prepared themselves by faith relationship to God will have a sad day.

We meet Christ in the needs of persons. The acts of mercy are not all the illustrations which he approves. But the ones mentioned are proof of self denial, pity, sympathy, and love. "They demonstrate that the doer of these deeds has God living in him."

William Barclay tells that Francis of Assisi was a wealthy high-born man, but he was not happy. He felt his life was incomplete. One day he was out riding and met a leper who was repulsive in the ugliness of his disease. Something moved Francis to dismount and fling his arms around this wretched sufferer; and, lo, in his arms the face of the leper changed to the face of the Christ.

Devotional

God's Exams

By John E. Barnes, III, Pastor, Antioch, Prentiss James 1:2-4

Before a student is promoted from one grade to another in school, he has to pass certain tests. The purpose of the tests is to determine whether or not he has learned the information he has studied.

The same principle of learning and being tested is at work in our spiritual lives. We may not see the principle at work because we are not looking for it, but it is there.

When we become Christians, God opens the way for us to begin learning. As we enroll in Christ's school, He begins to teach us the elementary ways of the kingdom: tithing, developing a prayer life, learning to practice love and faith, etc. God uses Sunday School, Training Union, worship, Bible reading, conversations with other Christians, and prayer to teach us to do these elementary things.

After we have been exposed to these teachings for a while, God gives us an exam. The purpose of the exam is to see if we have learned faithfulness in doing what He has been teaching us. If we have begun to tithe, God may permit us to have a difficult month financially to see if we will remain faithful. If we have set aside a regular prayer time, He may permit unexpected interruptions. If God has been teaching us to act with love toward everyone, He may impress us to do something nice for someone we intensely dislike. God has a multitude of tests like these which He uses to reveal whether or not we have learned to be faithful.

If we fail the test, then we have to go through a time of learning again. It is sad to realize that some people do not understand that their difficult times are a test, and they continue failing all their lives. Their spiritual growth is stopped where they are.

But if we pass the test, God says, "Well done!" and promotes us to a higher level of learning where there are more complex kingdom ways to learn.

When we speak of growing as a Christian, isn't passing God's exams what we mean? We continue to be promoted in the kingdom as we learn, and pass His tests.
